Know the Personality: The “Big Five”

□ Extraversion

- The tendency to be sociable, assertive, active, and to experience positive effects, such as energy and zeal.

□ Emotional stability/neuroticism

- The tendency to exhibit poor emotional adjustment and experience negative effects, such as anxiety, insecurity, and hostility.

□ Openness to experience

- The disposition to be imaginative, nonconforming, unconventional, and autonomous.

□ Agreeableness

- The tendency to be trusting, compliant, caring, and gentle.

□ Conscientiousness

- Is comprised of two related facets: achievement and dependability.
- Punctual, organized and systematic

What Does the Score Indicate?

Personality Traits	High Score	Low Score
Extraversion	Social	Self centered and alone
Openness to experience	Highly imaginative and creative	More conventional
Neuroticism	Frustration, anger, self blame and stress	Optimistic and emotionally stable
Agreeableness	Tendency to help others, social harmony, and cooperation	Selfish, unfriendly, and not caring for other concerns.
Conscientiousness	Careful planning, organization, neat and clean	Careless about their work and less likely to work in a mannered way.

How to Construct the Résumé

- Select the background facts.
- Arrange the facts into groups.
- Construct the headings.
- Include contact information.
- Include a statement of objective.

How to Construct the Résumé

- Your main objective is to gain the attention of your reader.
 - A specific objective statement: To secure a full-time sales representative position for McGraw Hill.
 - A broad objective statement: Seeking a position that will benefit from my sales experience, positive interaction skills and industry contacts where my twelve years' experience can improve the sales results.
 - Seeking a Marketing/ HR/ IT position that will benefit from my academic knowledge and establish a career for myself
- Present information under the rest of the headings
 - Work experience (title of the job, company name, location and date of employment).
 - Education (institutions, dates, degree and areas of study, CGPA, relevant courses, and relevant course work).

- Personal Information
 - Don't include race, religion, gender, age, and marital status
 - Do include information on your organizational membership, civic involvement and social activities

- References
 - Don't include the references unless your recruiters ask you to.
 - Don't use the outdated expressions such as “references will be furnished upon request”
 - Exploit your space

Approaches to Presenting Information

- The Reverse chronological organizational layout
 - Presents your education and experience from the most recent to oldest.
 - It emphasizes the order and timeframe in which you have participated in these activities
 - This approach is highly recommended as it is widely used and the employers are familiar with this

Writing the Cover Letter

- Introduce yourself to an organization.
- Demonstrate your interest in the organization or vacancy.
- Draw attention to your resume and motivate the reader to interview you.

Writing the Cover Letter

- Beginning:
 - ❖ Capture the attention of the reader
 - ❖ How you found out about the opening/ vacancy
- Body:
 - ❖ Relevant qualifications
 - ❖ Accomplishments
 - ❖ Personal qualities
 - ❖ Refer to your resume
- Closing:
 - ❖ Ask for an interview and give them information on how that can be arranged.

Successful Cover Letter

Dear Ms. Stark,

I am pleased to express my interest for the Human Resource Officer position, posted on bdjobs.com. As a June graduate with a degree in human resource management and internship experience, I am well qualified to meet your needs.

My studies at University of Aberdeen were specially planned to prepare me for a career in human resource management. I have taken courses in compensation theory and administration, organizational change/development, performance appraisal, training and human resource development.

Successful Cover Letter

As part of my degree requirements, I also passed the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) Certification Examination. In addition, I studied a wide assortment of supporting subjects: economics, business communication, information systems, psychology, interpersonal communication, and operations management. My studies have given me the foundation to learn an even more challenging practical side of HR work.

As my résumé shows, I have begun learning the practical side of HR through an internship, where I completed a variety of tasks from researching and reporting data on company and industry trends to participating in the hiring process. I would welcome the opportunity to continue working in HR with your company.

Successful Cover Letter

My work experiences have also prepared me for a career in human resource management. While in college I worked as a server at Revolution, where I developed customer service and team skills, and I continued to develop my skills as a team leader for Argos, where I was the top performer of eight quarters. From these experiences, I have learned to understand human resource management and listen carefully to people.

These brief facts and the information in my résumé describe my diligent efforts to prepare for a position in human resource management. May I now talk with you about beginning that position? You can reach me on 0162509* to arrange an interview and discuss how I could fit in your Human Resource Department.

“Emphasize your strengths on your resume, in your cover letters and in your interviews. It may sound obvious, but you'd be surprised how many people simply list everything they've ever done. Convey your passion and link your strengths to measurable results. Employers and interviewers love concrete data” - Marcus Buckingham

Handling The Interview

- Investigating the company.
- Making a good appearance.
- Anticipating questions and preparing answers.
- Putting yourself at ease.
- Helping to control the dialogue

THANK YOU
